Additional Notes Concerning Risks of Investment

Unfortunately, there will never be a guaranty that a potential investment will be profitable even if such potential investment obviously fulfills all criteria of a good investment.

Estimations and valuations reflect the opinion of the author at creation time. Forecasts of share price developments when going public or other developments do not contain any guarantee for the correctness of these forecasts in the future. The information and reports provided by us are sent to us either in full or in part by third parties. Although we are sure that these sources are reliable and trustworthy we cannot guarantee their scope, precision, completeness and in-time presentation.

Also, our forecasts do not represent any warranty or a 100% guarantee for the development of our shares, our company success or the success of our participations and/or the credit worthiness of our creditors which may be relevant for the future development of our company.

It must be noted that investments are always linked with risks. Because of political, economic, and market-related or other developments it may come to unforeseeable losses.

General notes to quotes of securities to qualified investors

The securities of Atlanta Bourbon Company, Inc. are not suitable for every type of investor. Our investment has a profit potential but simultaneously faces substantial risks. Our securities are not sold to "non-qualified investors".

No advertising and no public offer

The information published in this explanation (but also in other presentations, brochures and contracts of our company) are no offer and no advertisement for the sale of securities of Atlanta Bourbon Company, Inc. as far as such an offer or advertising or sales would be illegal in any jurisdiction.

The knowledge of the above-mentioned condition of trade with non-listed securities prior to their public offering is not only important for professional traders but also for wealthy private investors.

Market risks

Market risks can generally be divided into two categories: in general, and company-specific risks. General risks are changes in the exchange rates due to the general market development. The value of a share may go down without that the economic situation of a company has been altered in any respect.

The company-specific risk depends on the company itself. Negative events are high raw material and/or purchase prices, cancellations, death of managers or strikes. There also is good news, e.g. good quarterly results, acquisition of large orders, innovative products and good market perspectives. These events may impact the Company's performance.

Security sales acc. to Rule 506 (c) of Regulation D of US exchange supervision authority SEC

The contents of this page do neither represent an offer to sale nor a request to purchase or to the subscription of deposits. A subscription is exclusively done based on Rule 506 (c) of Regulation D of the US exchange supervision authority SEC <http://www.sec.gov/answers/rule506.htm>.

Other agreements

If at any time a provision (or part of a provision) of our conditions be invalid, impossible to execute now or later according to the legislation then the legality, effect or execution of the remaining provisions (or the remaining parts of this provision) of these conditions in this or another legislation remain untouched.

Our securities are not allowed to be offered for sale in all countries to all groups of persons and are explicitly reserved for the persons belonging to the group of "qualified investors". The notes being valid for certain products can be found in this disclaimer and also in other publications of Atlanta Bourbon Company, Inc., on the following page and in the subscription documents for the securities of our company. Therefore, these notes should be carefully read by the user.

Qualified investors have many years of comprehensive experience with the financial business and dispose of sufficient financial means and are therefore very well suited for investments in securities - an that not only from the international supervision authorities' point of view.

In addition, those "qualified investors" often consult an asset manager in addition to their own knowledge and often fall into the category of "High-Net-Worth Individuals", i.e. investors with free investment capital of min.1 million Euros or "Ultra-High-Net-Worth Individuals" with a free investment capital of min.10 billion Euros.

After you have accepted and understood all our notes above and have confirmed this by your signature below on this explanation you will get information and investment options for institutionally qualified investors. Please make sure (in favor of your own protection) before you continue that you have really understood everything and that there may be defined legal restriction in addition to this information.

In particular, the following restrictions are valid:

The executions in this explanation (but also in many others of our publications, presentations, contracts, brochures and other marketing material) contain information about securities which are only available to "qualified investors" and which are emitted acc. to the US law. An accredited investor in his nature as natural person must have surpassed an income of 200,000 USD (or 300,000 USD together with his spouse) in any of the last two years and expect the same for the current year. Alternatively, a "qualified investor" disposes of an asset of more than one million USD either alone or together with his spouse. Detailed information as well as explanatory calculation examples can be called from: <http://www.sec.gov/answers/accred.htm>

For those securities also notes exists from other supervision authorities.
